UNIVERSITÀ
CATTOLICA
del Sacro Cuore

An international MBA for tomorrow's entrepreneurs

The MBA in Global Business and Sustainability offered by ALTIS – Postgraduate School Business and Society of Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore is where the identity of ALTIS is forged. It boasts successful research outcomes, and the inspiration for new projects.

The program's uniqueness lies in its combination of traditional business preparation with a personality of its own:

- Bridge: From its origin this course has been an intermediary between European business and the new fast growing economies of the Developing World. This is proven by the composition of the student body (an average of 17 nationalities are represented each year), the faculty and professionals from all over the world, the close focus on international business issues, corporate internships, and job opportunities.
- Sustainability: The environmental crisis, energy shortages, climate change, human rights violations, supply chain management in emerging economies, gender equality, and corruption, are situations in which young managers will be asked not only to find valid solutions for his/her company whilst minimizing harm for the society, but to examine the potential that exists in these new and changing circumstances.
- Creative entrepreneurship: In our MBA, students will be provided with the tools needed to perceive such communal and environmental upheavals, which will be perceived as opportunities for new business creations which can contribute to both and economic and social flourishings.

We are looking for young, talented business leaders eager to share our mission: Fostering Impact Entrepreneurship and Management for Sustainable Development.
Welcome on board!

It is an opportunity to study and work with professors, colleagues and businesses that share your values and your international vision. The MBA in Global Business and Sustainability is a spring board for managers coming from the fastest growing and most recently industrialized countries who desire to take advantage of the European education system in order to develop their business skills and competencies.

At the same time the MBA program is advantageous for Italian and European managers who wish to enhance their careers or develop their business abroad.

The didactic method is highly interactive and students will enhance their learning through seminars with experts, managers and entrepreneurs from companies that operate throughout Brazil, Russia, India, China, the Mediterranean basin, and other destinations around the world.

Alumni stories

Hesbon Achola, Kenya

Upon his graduation from the MBA Global Business and Sustainability, Hesbon launched the Mazao Agribusiness and Educational Farm (MAEF) in Kiserian, Kenya three partners.

"The turning point came when we visited an agro-farm just outside of Milan, which does business respecting the territory and its traditions. That was the spark, that is where I came up with the project I would export to my country», says Hesbon. In the following months, with the support of Altis, Hesbon perfected the business model and launched a cooperative which now employs 6 staff and assists 20 farmers. Besides production MAEF offers training and support to local small farmers so that they can move from a subsistence economy to a market economy.

Kate Hui, Hong Kong

After having moved to Italy Kate joined the MBA program. The Italian language courses and the internship undertaken in an Italian company with an established presence in China, led to a final placement in the company itself where she exercises a key role in managing the company's Asian client base. Kate, who knows both Mandarin and Cantonese, took great advantage of this MBA which is specifically designed for liking Italy and fastest growing economies.

Dominic Jayakumar, India

From a business plan drawn up on paper in March 2010 by Dominic Jayakumar a brick factory set up in Tamilnadu (India) is now up and running. The company was registered on December 8th 2010, with the opening ceremony taking place with the participation of the governing body of Loyola Educational Institutions, one of the MBA partners, which has followed and promoted the project. The significant added value of this initiative is the employment of the so-called Dalit, or individuals coming from the caste of the untouchables. The Dalit, states Dominic, make up a fifth of the Indian population - around 200 million people. In the region of Tamilnadu alone they represent 19.17% of the 80 million population.

Career outcomes

The new protagonists of the world economy seek a growing presence in established markets. Italian and European business faces an evermounting competitive challenge from the BRICs countries (Brazil, Russia, India, China) and emerging economies. The direct encounter that occurs in the person of the student with these two realities enhances the possibility of a collaboration that can positively affect both the economic progress of new markets and the competitive stance of European business.

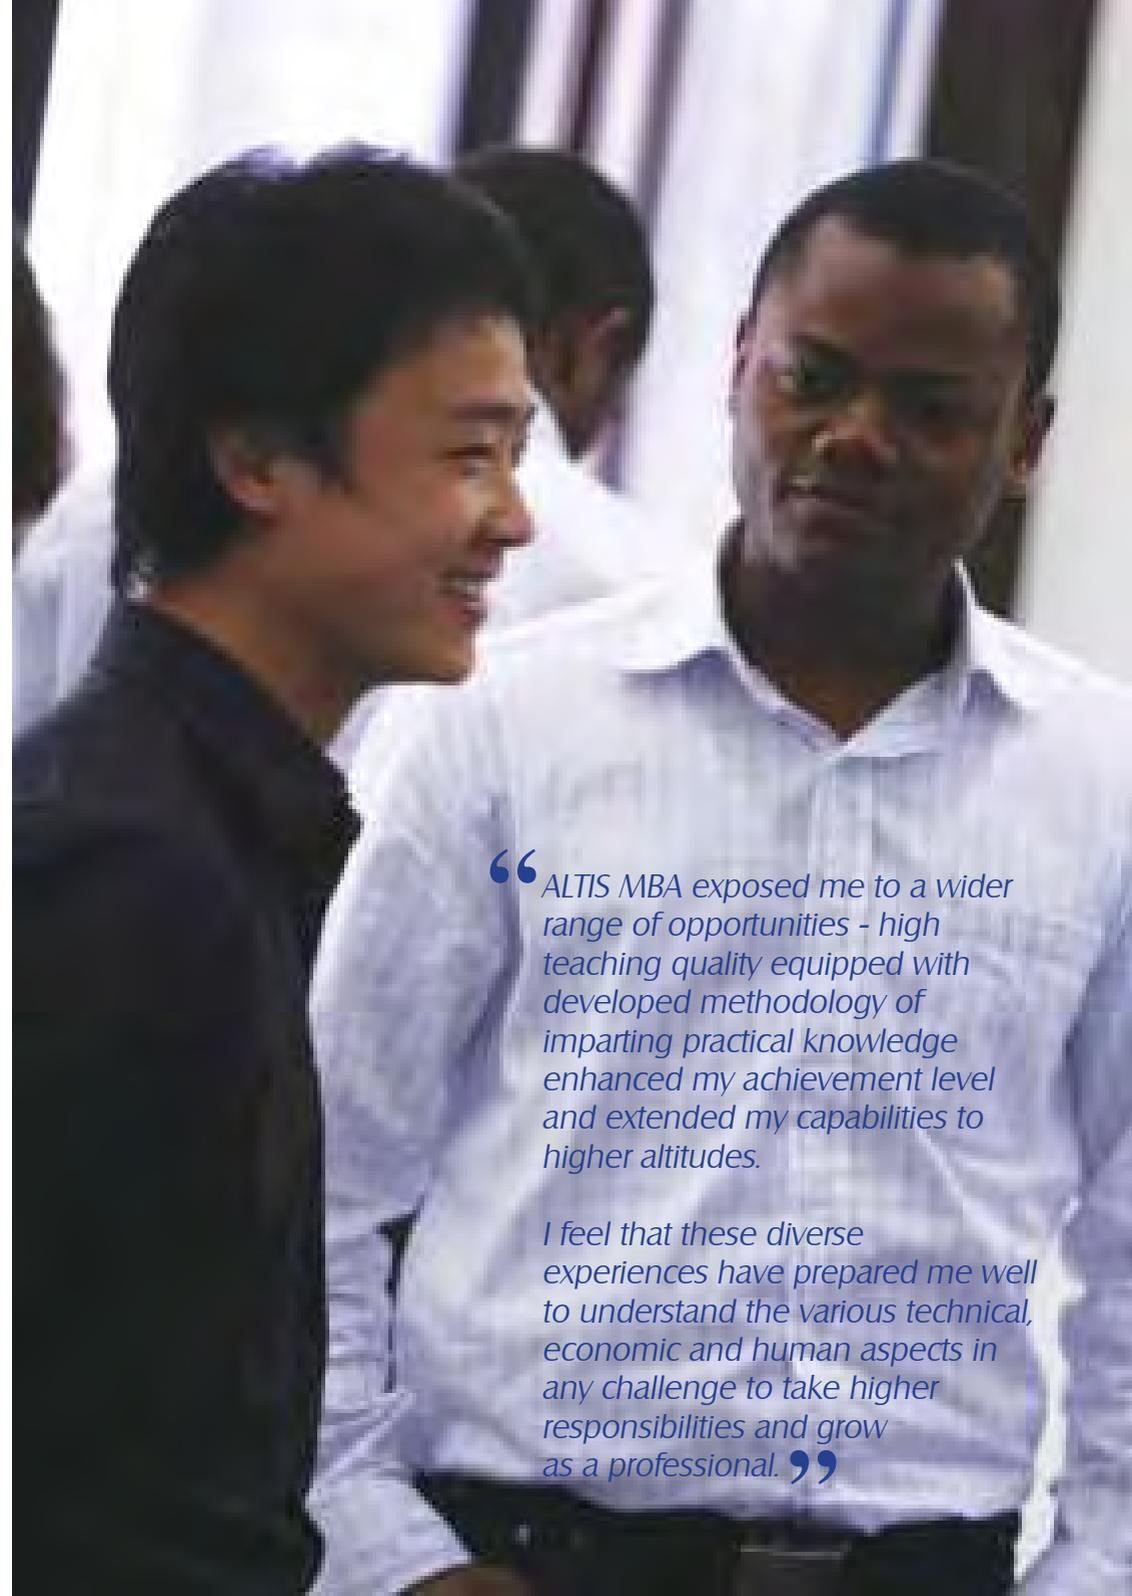

The MBA prepares participants to become:

- Managers in an Italian or European company that has established or intends to establish a presence abroad
- Managers in a company from the participant's country that is involved in an internationalization process
- Entrepreneurs who want to develop a new business with an international scope

Access to markets, access to sources of development capital, contact with businesses directly interested in the participant's native country, intercultural trust and understanding are all within reach of the student enrolled in the MBA in Global Business and Sustainability.

Footsteps around Milan

Milan is a city of movement. People walk everywhere. Their sense of style ranges from casual sophistication to elegant design.

Milan is a modern and progressive city, the commercial heartland of Italy, and headquarter to many of Italy's multinational corporations and world famous brands.

Milan is a city of people. A city full of life. The menus of Milanese restaurants have influenced the world's finest cuisines. And the creations of Italian designers have placed Milan alongside New York, Paris, and London as a home of global fashion.

Milan is the undisputed financial, commercial and industrial capital of the country and has a driving economy that makes it the only gate to international capital markets. It has over 8,600 registered active national and international financial and insurance businesses.

The Italian Stock Exchange, la Borsa Italiana, which lists over 220 companies, is located ten minutes away from our campus, a prime vicinity for those students studying in the fields of Economics, and Banking and Finance.

Being headquarter to many of Italy's multinational corporations and world famous brands, Cattolica students can breathe and live the energy of a business-centered city life right outside the central campus doorstep, and are in the ideal position to put into practice the knowledge gained during the courses whilst using their own language abilities and cultural competencies that are so valued and sought-after.

Milan is also hosting the Expo 2015 World Fair with the central theme of "Feeding the Planet, Energy for Life," providing companies operating in a wide range of fields (from food and food biotechnologies to renewable energies and logistics) the chance to network, discuss trends and encourage business and growth. Cattolica students are in an excellent position to closely observe and discuss the planning of this key event.

Yet despite the opportunities which accompany a busy and successful city, the essence of Milan is as true today as in centuries past. With the world-famous opera theatre, La Scala, the imposing Duomo Cathedral, the stunning Castello Sforzesco, and the young and trendy Colonne di San Lorenzo all close by, Milan marks its presence on the global cultural scene too.

In short, Milan is a beautiful, cultured and dramatic city, offering a multitude of features that tourists rarely discover and an equal number of opportunities for International Students to develop their academic and professional careers.
